Introduction

I'm an experienced full-time wedding and portrait photographer, with years behind the lens and the privilege of running my own high street studio.

Over my career, I've photographed everything from weddings and portraits to publicity shots, press releases, and portfolios—and I'm proud to have won a National Kodak Award.

I'm completely at ease photographing people from all walks of life, in any setting. Whatever the weather, venue, lighting, or schedule throws our way, you can relax knowing I have the expertise to adapt and deliver.

My style blends natural, candid moments with beautifully composed classic portraits, creating a timeless collection that's uniquely yours.

Together, we'll discuss your vision in detail so your photos reflect exactly what you want. The result will be a heartfelt, artistic record of your wedding day—images you'll cherish for a lifetime.

Weather

This image has received so many wonderful comments, and booked weddings directly as a result of clients observing the use of the light and clouds!

Great wedding photography is about capturing people naturally, noticing the special moments, and staying aware of changing conditions like light and weather.

At this wedding at South Farm, Royston, the sunset brought dramatic clouds and beautiful light. I suggested it was the perfect time for photos, and the couple happily agreed.

And the muddy marks on the bride's dress? That was entirely her choice, having fun with piglets who trampled all over it - not something I initiated!

Every moment captured is about your vision, your fun, and your story.

Creative Portraits

Natural shots are wonderful, but if we relied solely on what happens spontaneously, we might miss some truly stunning moments, like taking the bride and groom to the perfect spot for photos.

After discussing it with my couples, most choose to spend a little time making the most of their venue and the light, ensuring their photos are as beautiful and memorable as possible.

Rain

At Gary and Halyna's wedding at South Farm (above), it rained for a part of the day, but they were very up for having some shots in it.

I'm often asked, "What if it rains?"

The good news is that it rarely rains all day, so there are usually plenty of opportunities for outdoor photos.

On the rare occasions when it does, we can still create beautiful images—using umbrellas, finding sheltered spots, or shooting indoors.

While sunshine is lovely, rain can add a magical and unique atmosphere to your wedding day, just as it did for Peter and Ellen at Tewin Bury Farm, Welwyn (left and immediately above).

It rained much of the day, but their spirits stayed high, and we captured some truly memorable moments.

Pre-Wedding Shoot

A pre-wedding shoot is included, whichever option you book.

A pre-wedding shoot helps you feel relaxed and confident in front of the camera, so you'll look and feel your best on your big day. We'll take a relaxed stroll in a local park and get to know each other, making the wedding day photos even more natural. Many photographers charge up to £300 for this, but with me, it's included.

You will also receive all the photos in high resolution, to be able to use them in your invites and menus, or just keep them for yourselves. Glen will edit each photo individually, for brightness and colour, to ensure you look your best.
